In this session, working independently or in a group, participants will extend their practice with information presented in the afternoon session and demonstrate the ability to perform the below tasks within the context of another case study.

Specifically, participants will be able to:
- Determine a likely Diagnosis
- Identify an available, relevant genetic test
- Locate documentation for clinical decision support and patient care
- Discover materials for patient education

AND based on interpretations of clinical blood and genetic tests, along with biological information found on the NCBI website:
- Understand a patient’s specific molecular etiology
